What a Week of "Garden Seed Harvesting-- and Strolls!"

Wooooowwww!
So Many SEEDS!
Elisa, Dotty, Bill, Cheri, Tom, and Ruth all gathered away in the PERFECT Fall weather!
Arrows are helpers!

So what will we do with these seeds?

We will sort and package many
for Seed Shares,
the Seed Library,
Wintersowing
January 11th, &
Personal Use!

THANK YOU to everyone helping with these projects and programs!

Speaking of the Seed Library, it is currently at the point of getting a new home! Yippeeeeeee!! Theresa, Tyler, Marcie, Rex, Dawn, Carrie, and Ruth met at the Dorothy Pecaut Nature center to brainstorm for cabinet ideas and WOOOOOOWWWW it was SO REWARDING!

We are so excited to have so many fabulous ideas!!

If you need instruction on how to clean your OWN seeds, Dawn shared this Facebook post on a Conservation Blueprint Seed Cleaning Guide!

We checked out the website and there were several videos posted on seed cleaning!

The Conservation Blueprint Seed Cleaning Guide provides detailed guidance and instructions on how to clean more than 140+ local ecotype wildflower species. This guide will be made available to the public interested in the process in the future. Like, Follow and Rate the Conservation Blueprint Facebook page for more updates.

Check it out if you are interested, and sign up for the updates on this project!

And then we went for a Sunset Hike!

We were enthralled-- and then as we turned to go,

← BEHIND us the whole time was this GORGEOUS Harvest Moon!!

Needless to say, we stayed a LOT longer!
